FMCA Enhances AD&D & Emergency Medical Evacuation Benefits

Dear FMCA Members,

I am writing to tell you about new and improved member benefits that are coming your way. The Group Accidental Death and Dismemberment coverage that FMCA provides to all members has a new provider, Chartis Insurance, effective May 1, 2010. This coverage has been enhanced to include an additional paralysis benefit.

You can purchase additional accident coverage through the NEW "FMCA Years" Plan that will replace the "Loyal-Years" Plan some of you have purchased in past years. The Loyal-Years Plan offered AD&D insurance as well as accident hospital benefits, accident outpatient benefits and accident recuperation benefits; the amount of coverage was determined by the number of years you had been a member of FMCA. That program was cancelled by the Hartford Insurance Company, effective April 1, 2010, and you should receive notice from Hartford of non-renewal when your policy term expires. Our "FMCA Years" Plan will again reward you with a similar program but with better benefits. Look for information on this program in the near future.

Another bit of good news is that the Emergency Medical Evacuation benefit (currently provided by MEDEX, which will expire on Jan. 1, 2011) is being replaced with a new and improved program that is fully funded by FMCA and can provide up to a $109 value to you. Information about this new plan also will be forthcoming.

Finally, some of our members recently have received a confusing and inaccurate e-mail from a third party, who no longer represents FMCA, stating that the AD&D and emergency medical evacuation (MEDEX) coverage are being terminated, and that members should contact this individual. Please disregard this information. All coverages for FMCA members are being continued with no lapse in coverage.

Safe travels to all and I look forward to seeing you at our International Convention in Redmond, Oregon, Aug. 11 to 14, 2010: "REDMOND ROCKS."

Sincerely,

Charlie Schrenkel
National President
